The National Partnership for Action to End Health Disparities

Spearheaded by the Office of Minority Health, the National Partnership for Action to End Health Disparities (NPA) was established to mobilize a national, comprehensive, community-driven, and sustained approach to combating health disparities and to move the nation forward in achieving health equity. Through a series of Community Voices and Regional Conversations meetings, NPA sought input from community leaders and representatives from professional, business, government, and academic sectors to establish the priorities and goals for national action. The result is the National Stakeholder Strategy for Achieving Health Equity, a roadmap that provides a common set of goals and objectives for eliminating health disparities through cooperative and strategic actions of stakeholders around the country. Concurrent with the NPA process, federal agencies coordinated governmental health disparity reduction planning through a Federal Interagency Health Equity Team, including representatives of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and eleven other cabinet level departments. The resulting product is the HHS Action Plan to Reduce Racial and Ethnic Health Disparities, launched simultaneously with the NPA National Stakeholder Strategy in 2011. The HHS plan outlines goals, strategies, and actions HHS will take to reduce health disparities among racial and ethnic minorities. Both documents can be found on the Office of Minority Health web page at http://minorityhealth.hhs.gov/npa/.

Ohio’s Response to the NPA

In support of the NPA, the Ohio Commission on Minority Health (OCMH), an autonomous state agency created in 1987 to address health disparities and improve the health of minority populations in Ohio, sponsored a statewide initiative to help guide health equity efforts at the local and state levels. In Phase I of this initiative, OCMH sponsored a series of nineteen Local Conversations on Minority Health throughout the state. The purpose of these gatherings was to carry out community-wide discussions on local health disparities in which health needs could be identified and prioritized from the community’s perspective, and strategies could be generated toward local action plans to address minority health needs. Sixteen of the Local Conversations were geographically-based and were held in the state’s large and small urban regions. In addition, three statewide ethnic health coalitions convened ethnic-specific Local Conversations for Latino, Asian American, and Native American groups which brought in representatives from these populations across the state.
In Phase II, the Local Conversations communities continued broad-based Dialogues on health disparities and refined their local action plans. The Portsmouth Health Disparity Reduction Plan in this document is a result of this process. The Portsmouth Local Conversations on Minority Health were facilitated by the Portsmouth Inner City Development Corporation North End Community Improvement Collaborative, Inc.

Portsmouth Inner City Development Corporation

The Portsmouth Inner City Development Corporation (PIDC) is a community based nonprofit agency established in 1978, to address concerns about improving the living conditions and health disparities within the City of Portsmouth, with emphasis on the minority population which is concentrated in the Findlay Street Neighborhood commonly known as the North End. As part of our continued efforts to eliminate health disparities in the minority community, Portsmouth Inner City Development Corporation has developed, maintains, and owns several projects that serve as a conduit for mental health service recipients. PIDC operates two mental health facilities housing chronically mentally ill patients who demonstrate the ability to live independently. The two properties provide forty-five housing units. Our working partners for these projects are Shawnee Mental Health. Additionally, as part of our commitment to improve the lives of our minority constituents, PIDC has developed a high-rise facility specifically housing the handicapped and elderly community. This project has twenty-five units with an on-site service provider from American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

Geographic Scope

Portsmouth is the county seat and the largest urban area in Scioto County, a Southeastern County bounded by the Ohio River. Scioto County is one of the physically largest counties in Ohio; however, it is relatively sparsely populated. One reason for the lack of density in the population is that most of the county (75%) is forestland. The second reason is that Scioto County suffers from outmigration due to the economic climate in the area. Scioto County had an unemployment rate of 12.2%, in October 2011, giving it the fourth worst county unemployment rate in the state.
As of December 2016, the Ohio Labor Market Information Report sited Scioto County unemployment rate at 7.7%. Although the unemployment rate as decreased since 2011, Scioto County continues to rank as one of the counties with an extremely high unemployment rate. Per capita incomes continue to be lower in Scioto County when compared to the State of Ohio and United States in general.

Demographic Profile of Scioto County

Scioto County population estimate as of July 1, 2015 is 76,825. Approximately 25% of the county population (20,226) resides in Portsmouth. The chart below shows that the population composition of the city is more diverse than that of the county.

The goal of Local Conversations is to “eliminate health disparities that occur by race and ethnicity, gender, education, income, geographic location, disability status, or sexual orientation.” PIDC and its partner, Southern Ohio Medical Center, wish to enhance this goal in Southern Ohio. Health disparities are the persistent gaps between the health statuses of identified populations. Despite continued advances in health care and technology, Appalachian counties and impoverished areas continue to have more disease, disability, and premature death than non-Appalachian, more affluent counties. Appalachians and other minorities in lower socioeconomic classes are at greater risk of chronic conditions such as cardiovascular disease, stroke, cancer, low birth weight and diabetes. For the purpose of this document there is insufficient data compiled which distinguishes the racial and ethnic minority groups within Appalachia. As defined, Appalachians are themselves considered a minority. It is for this reason that we strongly encourage statewide, over sampling of minority populations for the purpose of providing disaggregated, health data that will be used to inform minority health policy and programming.

Summary of Findings

The following “areas of opportunity” represent the significant health needs of the community, based on the information gathered through this Community Health Needs Assessment and the guidelines set forth in Healthy People 2020. This Community Health Needs Assessment was conducted by the Southern Medical Center, which is a partner in the Round 2 Local Conversation. From this data, opportunities for health improvement exist in the area with regard to the following health issues.

Continuing the Local Conversations – Round 2

The first event was held on June 6, 2016 at 1206 Waller Street, Portsmouth, Ohio.

On June 20, 2016 the second event was held at 10:00 am at 1206 Waller Street, Portsmouth, Ohio. There were ten total participating partners, represented as six African American minorities and four Caucasian individuals.

Report of the Second Round of Local Conversations

The Portsmouth Inner City Development Corporation, Inc. hosted the Second Round of the Local Conversation to end minority health disparities. The meeting was advertised in the local newspaper and in the local faith based community. Participants attending the meeting represented the Southern Ohio Medical Center (SOMC), Portsmouth Metropolitan Housing Association (PMHA) Kingdom Builders Evangelistic Ministries, Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Portsmouth City Health Department (PCHD), Operation Safety Net (Homeless Shelter), Shawnee State University (SSU), the Portsmouth Daily Times, and other community members.

The group reviewed the recommendations identified in the report of the First Round of the Local Conversation held in 2009 and discussed what progress had been made in the areas of needs identified. The following is a summary of the discussion:

Updates on Resources

There were no increases identified in funding for individuals who cannot afford health services or medication, which creates a continuous hardship on those without medical insurance or the financial means to pay for services and medication.

There has been great improvement in the medical communication technology that is beneficial to patients. The Medical Cloud which allows patients files to be accessed by doctors other than the primary care physicians save time by not having the patients go through the process of signing release statements. Patients can opt out of this service at any time.

The Patient Portal is an application that allows patients to access portions of their electronic health records, including laboratory and medical imaging results securely and conveniently from any computer or device that connect to the internet. This technology is extremely beneficial to patients who wish to monitor all aspects of their health care.
Updates on Services

Mental health and drug addiction is an area of great concern for the County and the surrounding area and no noticeable attention has been directed to reducing the stigma of mental health treatment. Shawnee Family Health continues to provide mental crisis stabilization care for those with mental illness. There are a number of counseling and rehabilitation services presently in existence, and the Portsmouth City Health Department will be opening an Alcohol & Other Drug Addiction clinic in their facility in the coming weeks.

The Portsmouth City Health Department (PCHD) also presently provides Naloxone at no cost to be used to treat narcotic overdose. PCHD also has a needle exchange program, which gives over 14,000 clean needles per month in exchange for used needles to help prevent infections and diseases. Portsmouth City Health Department also continues to provide teen pregnancy prevention, among other useful services.

The homeless residents of the County rely on Operation Safety Net (Homeless Shelter) for safe housing, clothing and food, therefore additional funding has been provided to the homeless shelter to support the service including a rapid re-housing program. Many food pantries and faith based food sources are available. Steven Hunter Foundation and the Community Action Organization - Back Pack program provide weekend take home food supplies for students.

Monthly health exchanges meetings are held at the Welcome Center. These meetings have an emphasis on prevention and wellness. SOMC also conducts an “Eat Right” Program.

Wood Forest Bank in the local Wal-Mart Super Store offers free budget management classes for anyone who desires to participate. In addition, the Portsmouth Metropolitan Housing Association provides FSS (Family Self Sufficiency) courses for residents. These courses teach budgeting and saving. This program equips residents with the ability to eventually become homeowners.

Capacity Building

The Scioto County Health Foundation was established to identify the best practice models and to determine which strategies will be effective and appropriate for our community. The Scioto Foundation is a broad based coalition of individual groups representing multiple sectors of the community who meet monthly to plan and implement initiatives to reduce health disparities.

The following are some of the strategies that are under consideration or that have been put into effect:

Southern Ohio Medical Center (SOMC) and Kings Daughters Medical Center (KDMC) are working on the concept of Medical Homes services which would take doctors into the patients homes to provide personal care for those who may not or cannot travel to a medical facility for medical assistance. This program will also be useful for those who does not necessarily require a face to face visit with a physician. SOMC offer consulting services in partnership with Ohio State University and KDMC offer consulting services in partnership with Cleveland Clinic to provide a wider range of service on a local level, this service reduces travel time and reduces extra expense to patients who are seeking the care of a medical specialist. Health screening and health education is provided by several faith-based organizations, Portsmouth Metropolitan Housing Authority, the Operation Safety Net (Homeless Shelter) as well as minority health fairs. Southern Ohio Medical Center conducts health fairs in the minority community to get direct input from the minority community to access their health needs.

The Homeless Shelter, local churches, Salvation Army, PMHA, Sojourner House, The Counseling Center and Law enforcement are the organizations that have been recognized as having knowledge of the location and needs of indigent residents who need assistance.

Connex is a bike and walking trail that is in the development process to provide healthy physical alternatives. Also, free public exercise classes are held periodically by local hospitals and faith-based organizations.
Infrastructure

To date, there are no free clinics in Scioto County; however, there are physicians who provide services at a reduced rates. The Portsmouth City Health Department provides free vaccinations to the residents of the homeless shelter and children and adults can receive vaccinations at the clinic in the Scioto County Health Department.

A discounted prescription plan is provided by Kings Daughter Medical Center and information on generic drugs and discount programs are made available to the public by the local pharmacies: Wal-Mart Pharmacy, Kroger Pharmacy, Kmart Pharmacy and , CVS Pharmacy and Kings Daughters Medical Center.

There were many discussions held on providing free clinics and prescription plans and the idea of raising funds to support or provide those services and other health care needs for those at risk in Scioto County, however, due to low economics in the County it was determined that it is not practical to mount large scale fundraising projects.

Where Do We Go From Here?

The establishment of the Scioto County Health Coalition has given the community an avenue to work together as we continue to monitor the health needs of our county and to work as a group in identifying resources – both financial and in-kind donations – that can be utilized in health services for residents.

The mission of the Scioto County Health Coalition is to improve the health, wellness, and economic opportunities of Scioto County residents through partnerships and programs. The vision of the Scioto County Health Coalition is to transform Scioto County into a health, economically vibrant community, in which to thrive, work, and prosper. The coalition is a link to resources and a connection point between health-focused resources. Community partners include area hospitals, healthcare service providers, local businesses, and development foundations. Multiple community-wide, health-driven initiatives have been deployed, including Healthy Bucks, a certificate which enables residents to purchase fresh produce from local farmers markets. The “I Choose To” Campaign has a monthly focus based on different health awareness topics, including smoking cessation and prevention, drug prevention, and physical activity motivation. The coalition is still in the infancy stages, but multiple subcommittees have been enacted and work plans have been developed. As the coalition continues to grow, more health initiatives will be tackled.

Ohio’s Response to the NPA

In support of the NPA, the Ohio Commission on Minority Health (OCMH), an autonomous state agency created in 1987 to address health disparities and improve the health of minority populations in Ohio, sponsored a statewide initiative to help guide health equity efforts at the local and state levels.

In Phase I of this initiative, OCMH sponsored a series of nineteen Local Conversations on Minority Health throughout the state. The goal of Local Conversation to “eliminate health disparities that occur by race and ethnicity, gender, education, income, geographic location, disability status, or sexual orientation.” PIDC and its partner, Southern Ohio Medical Center, wish to enhance this goal in Southern Ohio. Health disparities are the persistent gaps between the health statuses of identified populations. Despite continued advances in health care and technology, Appalachian counties and impoverished areas continue to have more disease, disability, and premature death than non-Appalachian, more affluent counties. Appalachians and other minorities in lower socioeconomic classes are at greater risk of chronic conditions such as cardiovascular disease, stroke, cancer, low birth weight and diabetes.

For the purpose of this document there is insufficient data compiled which distinguishes the minority group within Appalachia. As defined, Appalachians are themselves considered a minority.
Health Disparity Indicators

Accessibility to healthcare is a disparity most often associated with the barriers of entry into the health care system. Health insurance coverage directly affects access to medical care, regardless of race. There are an increasing number of people who work without the benefit of health coverage. The excessive use of the emergency and urgent care departments of local hospitals increases the cost of care for individuals and does not offer the continuity of care needed. In many cases, patients are forced to use the emergency room simply because it is the only medical facility they are able to access. Nearly 5.5% of the population in Scioto County represents a minority status, and the North End Community in Portsmouth Ohio is identified as the area with the highest percentage of minority residents. The residents of this neighborhood have been reluctant to participate in programs in which they are not familiar. The strategies outlined in the Portsmouth Health Disparity Reduction Plan will help to reduce these barriers.

Education levels and low health literacy levels add to a list of continued complexities that also create barriers to health care access. Only 11.7% of individuals in Scioto County have a bachelor’s degree or higher, with 18.2% of the population lacking a high school diploma.

National census data shows that Scioto County residents have a household mean income nearly $20,000 less than the national average, as well as 16.9% of families living below poverty level—almost double that of the national average of 9.6%.

A Community Health Survey was conducted in Scioto County in 2007 by an independent contractor, Professional Research Consultants, Inc. (PRC). PRC found that 26.2% of adult age 18-64 in Scioto County lack healthcare insurance coverage, nearly doubles the State of Ohio’s percentage of 14.6%.

At the time of the survey conducted by PRC, Scioto County residents were experiencing major health care barriers, such as high prescription costs, doctor visit co-pay expenses, and lack of transportation. The respondents were reporting they were unable to fill prescriptions. Only 68.9% reported receiving ongoing medical care, well below the Healthy People objective of 96% or higher. Without access to a regular source of care, patients have more difficulties obtaining care, make fewer visits to the doctor, and have more difficulty accessing prescription drugs. These difficulties also limit a patient’s access to referrals for specialty care.

Lack of access to public or reliable transportation is another health care access barrier. The majority of the population lives outside of the city limits and many households are unable to afford fuel for frequent trips for health care and they often miss appointments.

Specific health disparity concerns in the county include low infant birth weight, inadequate participation in cancer screenings, and disproportionate incidence of diabetes, high blood pressure, and obesity.

Low Birth Weight in Scioto County

Low birth weight is the single most important factor affecting infant morbidity and mortality. Also, some studies show the effect of low birth weight continues and attributes to adverse medical conditions throughout life. Low birth weight infants are prone to increased health issues such as heart disease, brain damage, developmental issues and diabetes. Various medical researches have linked poverty and other social factors to low birth weight. Some potential causes could be variation in the quantity and quality of health care, unemployment, housing conditions, and low social support.

Low birth weight represents two factors: maternal exposure to health risks and an infant’s current and future morbidity, as well as premature mortality risk. The health consequences of low birth weight are numerous. Low birth weight is the percent of live births for which the infant weighed less than 2,500 grams (approximately 5 lbs., 8 oz.).

Data on births, including weight at birth, are based on birth certificates and are routinely reported to the National Vital Statistics System (NVSS) at the National Center for Health Statistics, part at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). In 2009, a total of 10.3% of births in Scioto County were low birth weight; only seven of Ohio’s 88 counties had worse rates.

Other Indicators
The rates of Scioto County residents receiving mammograms, pap smears, and sigmoidoscopies are lower than state rates for these screenings. Scioto County residents also have higher rates of diabetes, high blood pressure, obesity, and sexually transmitted diseases than the state as a whole. In addition, Scioto County is designated as a Medically Underserved Area and a Health Professional Shortage Area in Primary Care, Dental Health, and Mental Health.

Local Conversations on Minority Health
The Local Conversations on Minority Health were held in two phases.

Phase I
Phase I was held in November, 2008 at a meeting in which attendees identified health-related needs affecting the minority community in Scioto County and Portsmouth. During the first Local Conversation on Minority Health, participants were divided into four breakout groups that discussed the following four areas of need: Resources, Services, Infrastructure, and Capacity Building. Each group consisted of a facilitator and scribe that aided the group in identifying and reaching consensus on the need. Upon identification of need, the participants went through an exercise in which they prioritized the needs identified.

Phase II
Phase II consisted of three community meetings in which the needs were further analyzed and recommendations prioritized. The focus of these forums was to develop a strategic plan and prioritize the recommendations from the four break-out groups in the Phase 1 meeting. The finalized recommendations are presented in the Portsmouth Health Disparity Reduction Plan.

Portsmouth Health Disparity Reduction Plan
Resources

1. Work to increase funding for the expansion of health services including multi-cultural sensitivity training for the development of health care resources for organizations providing health services to minority communities inclusive of African Americans, Native Americans, Hispanic, and Latinos.
2. Increase the use of technology for information sharing among service providers as a vehicle for reaching community audiences with health information.

3. Explore collaboration with Shawnee State University, Family and Children First, the Red Cross and other appropriate agencies as identified to create a web-based health directory for available health services.

4. Increase the access of health education materials in the community, particularly those designed for individuals with lower levels of literacy.

Services

1. Increase services that will meet basic needs of food, shelter, safety and transportation for families

2. Expand basic physical and mental health services in areas of identified needs such as:
   - Substance abuse prevention
   - Teen pregnancy prevention
   - Domestic violence prevention
   - Dental care
   - Nutrition education
   - Mental health crisis stabilization

3. Develop marketing initiatives that will:
   - Decrease the stigma associated with seeking mental health services and substance abuse services.
   - Motivate people to engage in positive health behaviors.
   - Increase community participation in wellness events.
   - Create messages that are culturally appropriate to better serve minority communities.

4. Increase the number of health education and health promotion programs for students and parents in schools and after school.

5. Increase the use of volunteer community educators providing health education services in schools and other community locations by involving community members in health education.

6. Develop healthcare recruitment strategies which target specific minority groups. This includes a “grow your own” initiative whereby participants are groomed to pursue health care careers with gratis tuition incentives.

Capacity Building

1. Establish a task force to identify the best practice models in health disparity reduction and determine which strategy will be effective and appropriate for our local community.

2. Establish partnerships which would increase and address self-sufficiency of individuals and families in the community by:
   - Increasing the number of health service providers in the region through arrangements with medical and other health training programs;
   - Involving local groups such as tenant councils and faith-based organizations in providing health education, encouraging participation in health screenings and adopting positive health practices.

3. Promote and provide opportunities for networking among service providers to facilitate better coordination of health services by sharing of resources. This would include jointly funding a grant writer and collaborating on the preparation of grant proposals for minority health disparity reduction initiatives.

4. Identify organizations and individuals who have knowledge of the location and needs of indigent residents.

5. Assess the health needs of the minority community by seeking direct input from members of the targeted population.

6. Establish a broad-based coalition of individuals/groups representing multiple sectors of the community who will plan and implement an initiative to reduce health disparities, keep a sustained focus on minority health issues, and advocate for resources with policymakers.

7. Partner with private sector and local government to develop healthy physical alternatives such as walking paths and free public exercise classes.

Infrastructure

1. Establish free health clinics that provide necessary medications (excluding prescriptive pain medication) to reduce the overuse of emergency rooms and to promote preventive health care.

2. Make information on generic drugs and on drug company medicine assistance programs available to the community.

3. Advocate for legal protection for health professionals who volunteer to provide free health services. This would increase the number of professional volunteers in providing health services in underserved communities.

4. Mount annual community fundraisers to help support access to health care.

Shawnee Mental Health Center, Inc. is a private, non-profit comprehensive community mental health center that has been serving the residents of Adams, Lawrence and Scioto Counties in Ohio since 1973. Our first office was located in Portsmouth, Ohio adjacent to Portsmouth Receivng Hospital (the state psychiatric hospital for south east Ohio). In 2001 we moved from that location to 901 Washington Street in Portsmouth into the former Leet Lumber Company Building which we purchased and remodeled into offices.

Services in the other two counties were provided out of small, leased offices until the early 1980s when the Adams County Commissioners and the Lawrence County Commissioners received grants from the National Institute of Health to build two office buildings (one in West Union, Ohio in 1980, and one in Coal Grove, Ohio in 1981) to house our clinics. In 2003 we opened a second clinic in Coal Grove and we established a crisis stabilization unit in Portsmouth. We serve approximately 5,000 people each year.

County Commissioners today are key players in bringing new businesses and industries to their communities, and keeping established employers from moving away. This means creating environments favorable for business growth and development -- using tax incentives and infrastructure planning tools more aggressively than ever before. Welfare reform, with the responsibility it gives counties to move unemployed Ohioans into jobs, has also put County Commissioners out front in local employment training and workforce development efforts.

On August 1, 1998, Portsmouth Metropolitan Housing Authority celebrated its 60th Anniversary. Established in 1938, PMHA was created by a group of concerned citizens who came together to address the lack of adequate housing caused by the devastating winter floods of 1937.

With cooperation from city officials and financial support from the federal government, PMHA first opened its residential doors to the public in 1941, providing “decent, safe and sanitary housing” to people on limited incomes. It served the public well in its early years and continues to do the same today. Last year, the housing authority experienced a 98.5% occupancy rate.

Over the decades Portsmouth Metropolitan Housing Authority has grown in size and administrative complexity. But despite the never-ending changes in housing laws and government regulation, PMHA continues to keep the commitment of its original founding fathers.

Today, PMHA owns, maintains and rents 886 units of public housing; employs a full-time staff of fifty, and annually generates over $4 million into the local economy.
